

Comments to FCC, re: CC DOCKET 99-200

I wish to endorse both options 1 AND 2!

There is no sound reason for allowing each telephone company to continue to hoard numbers.

I strongly support option 1

I also support option 2 (along with option 1) and believe that BOTH options should be adopted. Technology-specific overlay would not be an undue burden on those affected. It would generally be a one time change and not require other expensive changes either.

To repeat, I strongly support both options 1 & 2 to further increase the available number base for the 310 area code.

Another, rather novel idea which would further increase the available number pool would be to use existing hard wired home numbers for cellular use (also). I also would like to see the telephone companies be required to allow a private home user the option of transferring a land line (hard wired) phone number to a cellular phone!!!! I strongly urge you to require the phone companies allow for private users to be able to use their current/previously hard wired phone number to be made available for use with a cellular/wireless phone system.
